April 1, 2011

We're Not an ARL Library...why should we bother with scholarly communication initiatives?

Georgie Donovan, Appalachian State University
Teresa Fishel, Macalester College
Scott Mandernack, Marquette University

Available at: https://works.bepress.com/teresa_fishel/19/
We’re not an ARL library…
why should we care about scholarly communication?
One more thing to do? Why bother…
Scoping out the landscape
Designing a road map...
Landmarks

- Awareness
- Understanding
- Ownership
- Activism
- Transformation

Designing your own map...
Step 1: Preparing for the journey
Educating ourselves
Step 2: Sharing the journey
Educating our colleagues
Step 3: Adventures
Inspiration & motivation
Step 4: Expeditions
Building infrastructure
Step 5: The final destination
Transforming the landscape
Learning

Educating Ourselves

Educating Colleagues

Infrastructure

Inspiration

Outlook

Transformation

Getting there…
Just worry about me
Resources

- Scholarly Communication Toolkit (ACRL)
- Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ)
- SPARC
- ACRL/ARL Scholarly Communication Institute
- Create Change website
- Other libraries’ websites
- Blogs
- Conferences I virtual meetings & workshops
Questions + Discussion

Presenters:

Georgie Donovan, Coordinator, Bibliographic Services
Appalachian State University
donovangl@appstate.edu

Teresa Fishel, Library Director
Macalester College
fishel@macalester.edu

Scott Mandernack, Head, Research & Instructional Services
Marquette University
scott.mandernack@marquette.edu